All current Yamaha portable keyboards have piano-sized keys and excellent instrumental sounds to ensure that you and your child can discover instruments as diverse as piano, orchestral brass, jazz saxophone or rock guitar. As your child progresses, you will need to upgrade to a larger instrument, which is usually recommended after two years of lessons, but the exact timing is always best decided between you and your teacher.

The most authentic piano sound and piano feel comes from an acoustic piano. Yamaha has a long history of making instruments that are chosen by institutions and educational facilities around the world, including the Australian National Academy of Music in Melbourne. A unique feature of all Yamaha pianos is that they are seasoned specifically for the Australian climate. Yamaha acoustic pianos have a tone and feel that is responsive and supportive for students through to professional musicians.

IMPORTANT! PLEASE READ SECONDHAND YAMAHA PIANOS

Many secondhand Yamaha pianos offered for sale in Australia are imported from Japan as used pianos. You might think a secondhand piano is good value for money because it's cheap, but why take a risk with your money?

- No Yamaha warranty
- Depending on age, does not incorporate latest design features
- Many are not made for Australian conditions
- May have an unknown service history
- Potential problems with hundreds of worn moving parts
- Spare parts not available from Yamaha Music Australia
- Because of unknown history, unable to be supported by Yamaha Music Australia

Don't make a mistake with your investment.

PLAY IT SAFE - PLAY IT ON A NEW YAMAHA.
